

Giant Reed Observations and Affected Perennial Streams in Texas

Map Summary:

The highest density of Giant Reed observations occurs in Central Texas, particularly Austin–San Antonio area. Observations were recorded during the years 2008–2022. A total of 74 unique streams have observations within 0.5 miles.

The streams most impacted by Giant Reed more than 20 observations include Terlingua Creek, Shoal Creek, Guadalupe River, Walnut Creek, Waller Creek, San Antonio River, San, Felipe Creek, Blanco River.

The perennial stream with the highest number of Giant Reed observations connects at its southern confluence to the Rio Grande, which is not classified as perennial in this dataset.

Prepared By: Kennadie Neal

Date: 04/22/2026

Source: Texas Giant Reed Dataset and NHD Flowline (USGS)

Coordinate System: WGS 1984